PROXMIRE ASSAILS ABUSE OF SENATORIAL POWERS

The "ruthless use of power" by some top-ranking Senators is responsible for the shrinkage of the democratic process in the legislative branch of the government, according to Senator William Proxmire (Dem. - Wis.).

As True Magazine's featured speaker at the OPC media night, Jan. 18, Proxmire criticized the "absolute power" wielded by Senate party leaders. He was particularly critical of Vice President Lyndon Johnson in his past role as majority leader.

Proxmire was expanding on the lead article which he wrote for the magazine's February Silver anniversary issue. The article was entitled: "Democracy is Dying in the U.S. Congress."

Proxmire said the party caucus is "necessary instrument" to democratic policy planning in the Senate. He bewailed the fact that there was hardly one ayear between 1953-1959. He said he believed the fact there were six in 1960 was due to growing opposition to Johnson's rule.

He said this same type of opposition exerted itself during the recent attempt (Continued on page 5)

Awards Dinner and Dance Plans Launched this Week

Active planning for the 22nd Annual Awards Dinner and Dance was launched this week as Ben Grauer, Dinner Committee chairman, announced the names of the vice chairman who will supervise various aspects of the gala affair.

Date and place of the Annual Dinner, along with scale of ticket prices, will be announced shortly.

Ben Wright will be executive vice chairman of the committee and will represent Grauer whenever the latter is out of town. Vice chairmen are: Norwood Allman, William Berns, Henry Gellerman, Florence Laurence, Murray Lewis, Art Milton, Dorothy Omansky and Columbia Rossi.

Ben Bradlee of Newsweek. Later, he and the First Lady strolled unannounced into the White House press room.

President Kennedy plans to alternate his news conferences between morning sessions at 10:00 a.m. and afternoon sessions at 4:00 p.m. The new president was to hold his first such conference Jan. 25 before live TV cameras.

At press time, Pierre Salinger, presidential press secretary, indicated the cut-off time of the conference would be up to the senior wire service correspondent Marvin Arrowsmith of AP. Arrowsmith said his "Thank you, Mr. President" will depend on the news flow.

This new technique has the networks in a quandry, because of program commitments. Only ABC has so far indicated it will carry live telecasts through Feb.

The president says he is determined to use all possible means of communications, including live TV, to keep the public informed about his administration.

This approach is not necessarily true of some cabinet members. However, Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara said he plans an "open-door policy" to-

FRANKFURT...from PHIL WHITCOMB

No changes this month, for a change. Latest arrival, UPI buochief Nick Chris (who had switched with John Parry, now in London) is settling down nicely.... Robert Miller, lastwar corr, here last week....S&S sportswriter Leo Levine scored 4th in the Argentina Grand Prix sportscar races....

S&S African-scholarship specialist Marty Gershen, is following up on his Onah story by going back to Lambarene, Gabon, in early Feb to take Onah to NYC for 3 CBS shows, to KC for a KCMO appearance, and then to Piney Woods Country Life School, Miss, to begin his scholastic career. DOD is transporting Onah.

(Onah is the boy Marty wrote about who wanted to go to the US)....

The '40,000 families' now means, around here, the Dependents Retreat which the moribund Eisenhower admin fingered for repatriation because they spend too many dollars. Most newsmen are sceptical — half a million US bachelors in Germany wouldn't improve anything.

Three circ mgrs would be affected. Asked to comment, Sidney Label, S&S, said his circulation will drop somewhat; James Dixon, ArmyTimes/Wkend, expects no decrease at all; nor does Dagmar Rios, OseasWkly. The two latter sell to tourists and non-army residents; S&S does not...,

Gen Bruce Clarke, commanding US-AREUR, is getting the reputation of being pro-press...Leo Hochstetter has left the NEuro office (Scandinavia-Germany-Austria) of the Motion Picture Assn of Amer to replace Frank Gervasi as Dir Med Area in Rome....

Elegance and graciousness have flowered so profusely in the Union Club of Frankfurt (ex-pressclub) that the newsmen, gropingly led by Hazel Guild and Otto Doelling, have been looking for something more like Mac's Diner. Prospects are dim, though one entrepreneur offered a free back room if he was allowed to call the front room the Pressclub Bar; indignant refusal.

BERLIN......from GARY STINDT

Dwight Martin, Newswk, and wife Emily gave a press party at their new Berlin home the other night. The Martins are new-comers to Berlin (Dwight came here from Havana). The entire American presscorps turned out. So did members of the US and other Berlin missions.

Among the guests: UPI's Joe Fleming dean of the US presscorps; the Carl Hartmans, AP; Life photog Bob and Mrs Lackenbach; this NBC corr and wife; the George Bailys, Reporter; Herb Altschull, Newswk-Bonn; the Carl Kochs, Radio Free Euro; the Dean Kochs, RIAS; Col Bob Cranston, chief of AFN-Euro; Capt Maloney, station mgr AFN-Berlin; the Mark Whites, program dir, AFN-Berlin; and Mayor Brandt's former presschief, Hans Hirschfeld and wife....

Jim and Carlotta Anderson are set to leave Berlin. They represented the Lon-DlyMail and Westinghouse Broadcasting. Jim is becoming staff corr for Westinghouse in London. A farewell party for the Andersons was given Jan 20 by George Boultwood.

Guests included: Carl Hartman and W. Stangenberg, AP; Al Kluehs, Reuters;

OTTAWA.......from TANIA DANIELL
Henry Luce headed a team of five TimeIntl-Canada execs which appeared before the Royal Commission on Publications here Jan 17.

The govt-appointed commission is investigating the condition of the Canadian periodicals industry, with special reference to what Canadian publs regard as 'unfair competition' from the special Canadian editions of US publications, such as Time and RdrsDgst.

The chief Canadian complaint is that these Canadian editions — whose main product originates in the US — can afford to obtain Canadian advertising for their Canadian editions at far lower rates than can Canadian magazines.

Luce was accompanied by L.E. Laybourne, managing dir of TimeIntl-Canada; Roy Alexander, ed of both US and Canadian editions; John Scott, chief writer of the Canadian sect, and Robert Elson, now London buochief, who was Time's first Canadian news ed, in 1943.

The Time execs spent a full day attempting to show the commission that:
1) their Canadian edition was in fact an important source of Canadian news for Canadians, and that 2) if Canadian advertising were to be withdrawn from it, or restricted through extra taxation, the advertising dollars would not necessarily go to Canadian publications.

RdrsDgst, also under sharp scrutiny by the commission, will plead its case at a later hearing. (Continued on page 6)

ISRAEL SPEAKER DRAWS CROWD DESPITE WEATHER

It was a fittin' night to stay home but OPCers crowded the dining room Thurs., Jan. 19, to hear a distinguished spokesman from Israel, Menachem Begin.

Ansel Talbert, chairman for the occasion, said the turnout, in the face of the weather, "was a tribute to the personality of our guest."

Begin, an author and former underground leader, founded the second largest political party in the Israeli Parliament. At the Open House session, he centered his remarks around the topic: Israel and the Free World.

The highlights of Begin's talk and the question period touched on such subjects as Israel and the atom, the Eichmann trial, the Lavon affair, neutralism and world freedom. To achieve the last, according to the Israeli orator, there must be (1) freedom of choice; (2) an independent judiciary; (3) an uncensored press; (4) a free parliament with an effective opposition; and (5) a division between the ruler and the provider, which Begin described as the two main functions of national life.

During the question-and-answer period, Begin commented on the recent reports that Israel is capable of producing and, in time, using the atom bomb. "The Government denies it. To my knowledge this is true," said the former underground leader. "But by all moral and ethical standards, Israel has the right to have a deterrent." He added parenthetically, "We hope it will never be used."

'PREVIEW' RECEPTION

A special "preview reception," at which OPC members will have an opportunity to inspect the new Club head-quarters on West 40th Street, has been tentatively scheduled for late Feb. The exact date and detailed arrangements will be announced later.

Plans for the special evening are being worked out by OPC president John Luter and Oliver Gramling, chairman of the special committee in charge of planning for the new building. It is expected that the evening will begin with a cocktail party on the 10th floor of the Republican Club, and that members attending the reception will later be given a guided tour of major points of interest in the building which the Club expects to occupy next April.

'Piracy' in Caribbean Provides NBC Newsbeat

"Covering all bets' in a fast-breaking news story paid off for NBC News in the seizure of the Santa Maria in the Caribbean.

When the story broke, Len Allen, manager, foreign news, wired the captured ship asking for information, specifically about the disposition of the hundreds of passengers aboard.

The cable was sent about 10:30 pm, Jan. 23. A reply was received about 9:30 am, Jan. 24, from the seized ship, over the transmitted signature of Henrique Galvao.

The message informed NBC news that the action was taken as a step to overthrow the Salazar government of (Premier) Salazar and that the passengers aboard were safe.

NBC bulletined the information on its radio and television networks at 10 am and made plans to incorporate it in a special half-hour show the same evening entitled: "Piracy in the Caribbean."

The Greeks Had a Word..

The gournet foods and lilting music of Greece were featured at a Hellenic dinner at the OPC on Jan. 24.

Present for the occasion were the Ambassadors of Greece to the United States and to the United Nations.

While enjoying dishes ranging from Avgolemono to Baklava, diners were entertained by a Greek bousoukiplayer, guitarist and vocalist, and by Theo Fanidi, well-known Greek pianist. Door prizes were donated by the Home Lines, Air France, Pan American World Airways and TWA.

The National Tourist Organization cooperated with the Regional Dinners Committee in arranging the event. A capacity crowd attended.

GALA GREEK DINNER on Jan. 24 shows OPC President John Luter; Myra Waldo, Regional Dinner co-chairman; Paul Economous Gouras, Ambassador to the UN; and Alexis S. Liatis, Ambassador to the U.S.

Bad Manners, and Little News...

"THROW OUTS" GREET PRESS AT PAN-AFRICA 'SUMMIT'

By FRED SNIVELY

(Editor's note: As the London Economist - Jan. 14, 1961 - noted, "the Arab, not the African, personality was positively asserted" at the Pan-African "summit" conference which ended in Casablanca Jan. 7. Newsmen covering the conference found this painfully true. "Snively" is a pen name employed to avoid further unpleasantness in the event he has to work the Casablanca beat again.) CASABLANCA

One newsman grumped: "Never have so many correspondents been given so little." Another groaned: "Never have so many newsmen spent so much time interviewing each other."

That's the melancholy story of the strange pan-African "summit" conference in this sultry seaport where Hollywood always seems to turn up a couple of George Rafts in hot pursuit of a mysterious espionage queen.

The big mystery this time for the 100-odd correspondents trying to "cover" the closed-door sessions was how to snare any tiny snippet of reliable information - even the time of day. None of the eight delegations at the green baize conference table in Casablanca's ornately Moorish city hall held press briefings - even for their own newsmen.

Except for the opening ceremonies and the reading of the final communique - to which all newsmen and photographers were summoned - so-called "informed sources" shunned the city hall's huge pressroom like a leper colony.

Grim Monotony

Only the infrequent and unpredictable appearances of Moroccan Information Minister Moulay Ahmed Alaoui broke the grim monotony. The incredible performances of this glowering, bespectacled functionaire, a cousin of HRH King Mohamed V, alternately kept the correspondents in a state of rage and convulsion.

As chief conference spokesman, Alaoui began his first so-called press briefing with an innovation which newsmen immediately christened the "throwout" - heretofore unknown even to such renown innovators as the Madison Avenue pressagents.

After devoting fully five minutes to riffling aimlessly through a stack of papers and glaring with open hostility at the assembled newsmen, Alaoui suddenly began hurling conference programs the length of the table.

Thereafter no correspondent at this conference could be accused of filing a "handout." Everything with Alaoui was a throwout.

This was only the beginning. When the London Daily Express's Dick Kilian ventured to inquire whether newsmen would be admitted to the conference opening, Alaoui exploded. You'd have thought Kilian had insulted His Majesty.

Alaoui muttered a couple of unprintable epithets under his breath, then branded the question "stupid." More glowering.

To his everlasting credit, Newsweek's Arnaud de Borchgrave sprang into action. It was a legitimate question, de Borchgrave insisted. Whereupon Alaoui broke into a tirade against Newsweek. It had, he charged angrily, published inaccurate reports about Morocco.

At this point, both Kilian and de Borchgrave started to walk out, but Alaoui had the police on his official side. The two newsmen, the police said, must return and apologize. Both correspondents refused, and Alaoui demanded their conference press passes.

Refused to Apologize

After a couple minutes of face-to-face verbal slugging with "le Ministre," Kilian stomped out. The row continued as de Borchgrave took up a spirited defense of Newsweek. (Later three Moroccan newsmen privately told de Borchgrave that Newsweek's recent Periscope item was correct: There WAS an incident in the Moroccan armed forces.)

Through all this shambles three Russian correspondents sat impassively, never lifting an eyebrow. But Yugoslav, French and even Egyptian newsmen were visibly appalled.

Both Kilian and de Borchgrave kept their press passes and "covered" the conference from the outside looking in - like everybody else.

Most newsmen speculated that Alaoui forgot about the incident because he was too busy changing clothes. One minute he would appear in an elaborate burnoose that strongly resembled chinchilla. The next appearance would feature a dapper blue suit that might have come from London's Savile Row.

Life-Long Hatred

Local correspondents say Alaoui "qualified" for becoming Minister of Information by developing a life-long bitter hatred of all pressmen when he tried persistently but unsuccessfully to persuade French editors to publish pro-Mohamed stories during Morocco's independence

Others suffering through four days of Alaoui and his "summit" antics included the AP's Joe Dynan from Paris, UPI's Karol Thaler from London, ABC's Charles P. Arnot from Cairo, the Christian Science Monitor's Harry Ellis from Beirut, Time-Life's Marvine Howe from Rabat and the NYTimes' Henry Tanner who is heading for a new permanent base in Leopoldville for his West African beat.

Mysterious Casablanca is now safely back in the hands of Hollywood and the the George Rafts.

Speakers for the third annual Conference for College Editors, sponsored by the OPC and the U.S. National Student Association, to take place at the Clubhouse Feb. 10-13, will include 3 top advisors to the new administration, chairman Ruth Hagy Brod has announced.

The 3 speakers will be: W. Averell Harriman, Ambassador-at-large; G. Mennen Williams, Assistant Secretary of State for African Affairs; and Edward F. Kennedy, the President's brother, recently-returned from a fact-finding swing through Africa. John L. Steele, Time-Life Washington bureau, and John D. Rockefeller IV, who wrote the letters from Japan to Life magazinelast summer, will also address the college editors.

The program will be opened Friday evening, Feb. 10, with a reception at the Clubhouse followed by a panel on the Student and the Journalist in International Affairs, chaired by Dean Edward Barrett of the Columbia School of Journalism. William C. Payette, assistant general news manager, UPI, and James A. Wechsler, editor, N.Y. Post, will be Area seminars on the coverage of news in various geographical areas of the world will take place all day Sat., Feb. 11 (See Jan. 21 Bulletin). The luncheon speakers will be Mrs. Enid A. Haupt, editor and publisher of Seventeen magazine; Robert Considine, Hearst Headline Service columnist-reporter; and Mr. Kennedy.

On Saturday evening, dinner speakers will be Mr. Steele and Mr. Harriman. At the Sunday luncheon former Gov. Williams and Mr. Rockefeller, now a graduate student at Harvard University, will address editors and Club members who are panelists. Other Club members are asked to yield their Club privileges to the guests for this weekend, owing to the cramped quarters. A holiday weekend was chosen for the conference specifically to avoid inconveniencing members.

The luncheon and the dinner will be sponsored by Time, Inc., Seventeen magazine and the National Foundation for Youth & Student Affairs.

to include the vice president in the future deliberations of Democratic Senate caucuses. The opposition, Proxmire said, won out in deciding that Johnson might be invited, but that he cannot speak nor vote, and that his presence will be "strictly symbolic."

Proxmire tempered his criticism of Johnson by noting that it was Johnson's leadership which had been responsible "for more, not less of the more vigorous liberal legislation" passed by the Senate. Proxmire said power politics based on seniority make it almost impossible for key committee chairs to fall to more liberal-minded Senators. On the recent vote on Rule 22 (filibuster) Proxmire said he could not agree with President Kennedy's policy of not applying too much pressure so early in his term.

Tamara Borowiec, wife of AP's Andrew Borowiec, was injured Jan 16 when a group of Moslem youths attacked their car on the outskirts of Baraki, a village 12 miles SE of Algiers.

Mrs Borowiec was struck by rocks on the right cheek and just behind the right ear. She also suffered scratches from flying glass. Borowiec, who was driving, suffered a few scratches, also from flying glass.

About 20 youths began hurling rocks at the car as Borowiec's Renault-Dauphine as he was driving from Baraki past a new Moslem housing development. Stones shattered the windshield and broke the right front window; other stones struck Mrs Borowiec. Mrs Borowiec fainted.

Borowiec speeded the car and drove through the crowd. At the next town, Sidi Moussa, they obtained first aid from a European doctor. Gendarmes escorted the Borowiec's into Algiers where Mrs Borowiec was taken to a hospital. She was reported later resting comfortably at home and doctors said there were no complications.

The newsman had driven to Baraki for additional information on Jan 14 riots in which three persons were killed.

U.S. Newsmen Participate in French Alps Skiing

COURCHEVAL, French Alps - CBC-TV man Erik Durschmied (Canada) captured the combined classification in the Seventh "Annual Slalom at the Summit" of the world's newsmen held at Courcheval, high in the French Alps.

Biggest ever International Ski Encounter for Journalists, aimed at world understanding through the schussboom and the Charlie horse, attracted 200 foreign correspondents, reporters and press attaches from 20 nations.

U.S. team included Betty Azancot, Time-Life; Naomi Barry, NY Herald Tribune Paris edition; Angus Deming, Newsweek; Arthur Erikson, McGraw-Hill World News; Simon Kantin, NY Herald-Tribune Paris edition; Robert Kleinman, US News & World Report; Del Mulkey, free-lance, National Skiing magazine; and Bernard S. Redmont, OPC Bulletin. Also attending were Jack Hedges, US Embassy press attache, and Ben Holt, PAA-PRO.

As has happened often, an American (Kantin) captured the most lavish prize, cup for last place.

Soviet Newsmen attended for first time, and one of them, Vladimir Probrazhensky, editor-in-chief of Soviet Sports magazine, raced away with first place in special slalom, though he lost giant slalom and combined to the Canadian.

Pauline Murat of Realites (France) took first among women's events.

France also won national classification, followed by Switzerland and Poland.

A "little slalom" post-encounter meeting known as the Journalists Criterium will be held at Rougemont, near Gstaad, Switzerland, March 1-3.

The Eighth International Encounteris set for Verbier, Switzerland, in 1962, ....Bernard S. Redmont
